Linley

Desks with secret draws, London skylines created from thousands of pieces of marquetry, and Linley-clad Bentleys are just a few of the types of projects that characterise Linley's interiors. Founded by Her Majesty The Queen's nephew David Linley, he and his team's eye for detail has won the brand an enviable list of projects, recently on 25 suites at Claridge's, which were given the Linley Art Deco treatment. The company's pieces are considered the antiques of the future – ones that will be kept for generations to come – and are always made using the finest of materials.

Intarya

In London, your home is more than the place you sleep; it's your haven from the crowded streets and your constantly busy life outside it. Intarya is a name whispered among London's elite – a specialist interior design company responsible for several high-profile homes in Mayfair. Its experts will not only create your perfect abode, they will then spend considerable time sourcing the ideal art to complete the aesthetic. They will even show you where to hang it.
